

WW2 Clicker (Cricket)

Used extensively on D DAY, but also supplied to agents and the SOE, for communications at night or in wooded areas.

Originally designed for keeping time, in bands during the 1920's

The Click, on a still night can travel a very long way.

Originals are very rare, but tens of thousands have been made since the war, as souvenirs in Northern France.

Shiny Chinese replicas have now have invaded the replica market.

Have a click, to get maximum effect don't cover the sound box

1 click I am here

2 clicks I hear you, I am hear

3 clicks Come to me

4 clicks danger

Can you make your own code?