

A1134 Intercom Amplifier

Used on heavy Bombers for the crew to communicate

It plugged into the Type 192 junction box

Wires then connected to each crew members headsets

It also interfaced to the two radios on the plane

It was a vital piece of equipment

The bombers were very noisy and the crew were separated

Mounted on the skin of the plane, they were often hit by bullets

Leaving the crew to communicate with hand gestures

Many missions were compromised in this way
